National Recreation Trails Guide

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA
NOV 7 1988
GOVERNMENT DEPOSITORY

United States Department of the Interior
National Park Service
September 1988

Introduction

This guide lists and briefly describes, in state order, the National Recreation Trails. It provides information on types of uses, trail surface, trail length, and the seasons when each trail is open. Addresses are provided for obtaining additional information for each trail.

The National Trails System Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-543, as amended) provides for a system of trails consisting of Congressionally designated long distance National Scenic Trails and National Historic Trails. The law also authorizes a special designation of other trails as National Recreation Trails (NRTs). NRTs offer a variety of scenic, historic, or recreational opportunities accessible for general public use.

The Secretary of the Interior or the Secretary of Agriculture can designate an NRT. Designation carries with it the prestige and recognition of being a component of the National Trails System. Often this results in favorable publicity that has brought attention to communities, furthered outdoor recreation opportunities, and provided for protection to the trail itself.

The process of designating a trail as a National Recreation Trail begins with the submission of an application from the agency or group having jurisdiction over the trail. The application must address criteria indicated in the application package; it is then processed by the National Park Service with recommendations to the Secretary of the Interior. Applications are available from the regional offices listed on the facing page. Assistance is available to evaluate a trail proposal or to complete the application form.

A computer database (DBase III) containing information on all National Recreation Trails is available from the Recreation Resources Assistance Division (765), National Park Service, Post Office Box 37127, Washington, DC 20013-7127.

As the nation's principle conservation agency, the Department of Interior has basic responsibilities to protect and conserve our land and water, energy and minerals, fish and wildlife, parks and recreation areas, and to ensure the wise use of all those resources. The Department also has major responsibility for American Indian reservation communities and for people who live in island territories under U.S. administration.
